Scott is the person who would be the lead for running new BMPS through a technical committee pursuant to the working agreements that were outcomes of the Lower Boise draft framework and trading recommendations. He knows the watershed very well on the ground. I do have some concerns about getting the cart before the horse on trade ratio updates. Even the trading framework states that while we will review them every 5 years, we won't change them unless flows have changed by greater than 30%. I guess we'll all know more when we see the final TMDL analysis with regard to that concern relative to TP, flow and any attenuation that may or may not be occurring. As always, thanks for keeping us in the loop, Claire.

Well, now you can see what Scott presented to the Lower Boise TAC, if you're curious – and I was surprised to see the suggested talking points I provided for him late yesterday converted directly into slides! He may be a good person to bring into any of our technical discussions on BMPs.

Bill,

Attached is the powerpoint presentation I used today. I just kept it in the .ppt format since it wasn't a very large file.
