Carrie,

I'm providing my comments on two of the four documents you sent (I'll look at the other two on Monday). I'm hoping the other EPA folks will feel sufficiently inspired that they will also send you comments by your deadline of May 22.

My main concerns, as you will see reflected in the comments, are that:

- We need to be clear that the best practices are not competing with or replacing EPA's Trading Policy and other guidance documents, but instead are focused on adding to them with recommendations for use in ID, OR & WA, and are based on the states' and EPA Region 10's experience with trading thus far and what can be learned from other parts of the country. These recommendations fill in gaps and better focus some aspects of trading implementation and are intended to be consistent with EPA's Trading Policy.
- We also need to be clear that the final product, the recommendations or list of best practices, will still need to be incorporated into the states' trading program rules or guidance documents, and that each state will follow its public input/comment process that will give the public and stakeholders another opportunity to weigh in.

I'm on furlough tomorrow (Fri.) but will be back in on Monday if you have any questions.

Subject: Draft Best Practices, Follow-up from Workshop #1, Review by 5/22

Good morning!

Attached are documents representing the follow-up from Workshop #1. Please review and send us your feedback by Wednesday, 5/22. All documents are posted on the project website.

Here's what we have:

- Final Meeting Summary - incorporating feedback from the version distributed on 4/19
- Revised draft of the JRA 2-pager with tracked changes
- Revised draft of the Guiding Principles with tracked changes

- Draft Best Practices from Workshop #1 - these represent our best attempt to synthesize points of consensus we heard on the Workshop #1 topics during and since the workshop. The intention is that we continue to revise this document until all are satisfied and we can consider upgrading them to Pilot Best Practices come November.

As usual, I have included only the core project team on this email so that you may distribute within your agency as most appropriate. Please follow up with questions, and enjoy your weekend.

Finally - for those participating in the BMP call next week - please look for an agenda and brief materials from me by this afternoon.

Best,
Carrie
